

Christiane Kayser Some lessons from the Berlin workshop debates

Kä Mana African-Western cooperation:
profound change is unavoidable

Andrea Böhm The “North”, the “South” and the politics of memory

Jeanot Minla Mfou'ou A different kind of cooperation between Germany and Cameroon is both desirable and possible

Karin Doehne The understanding of partnership

Bonnie Campbell, Jean-Jacques Gabas and Denis Pesche Background to the setting up of an international research network on development assistance

Andreas Mehler Research and partnership, Issues in south-north cooperation

Flaubert Djateng Youth – hope for our society: some lessons from the Youth, Culture and Citizenship Project (Cameroon)

Elvis Tangwa Sa'a Nkem Traditional african chiefdoms: what role do they play after the Berlin Conference?

Shecku Kawusu Mansaray Humanitarian aid seems to have exclusively an occidental face: how to avoid paternalising and infantilizing – lessons learnt from Sierra Leone

Lancedell Matthews Waiting for development: occidental hegemony and humanitarianism in Liberia during the past generation

Cosmas Cheka The relevance of privatisation as a governance for sub saharan african countries after the recent global economic downturn

Marie José Mavinga Small and medium-sized businesses in Africa – a threatened potential. The example of the Democratic Republic of Congo

125 years after the Berlin Conference

Mapinduzi Journal 2

Mapinduzi Journal

2

125 years
after the Berlin
Conference: time to invent
a new cooperation

